These sequences were used in the scope of the invention for comparison with the cap protein derived from AAV serotype 9. The AAV capsid comprises three proteins vpl, vp2 and vp3, which are alternative splice variants. The AAV or the nucleic acid molecule is useful for preparing a medicament for delivering a transgene

     The present sequence is the protein sequence of the vpl capsid protein adeno associated virus serveype 1 (AAVI). The invention provides the nucleic acid and amino acid sequences of novel AAV8 and fragments of these sequences. Each of these fragments may be used in a variety of vector systems and host cells. Among the desirable fragments are the coproteins, including vpl, vp2, vp3 and hypervariable regions, the sequences including tep78, rep68, rep52 and rep40, and the sequences encoding these proteins. The AAV sequence can be used in gene therapy or as part of a vaccine to treat disorders. The method is useful in detecting and/or identifying AAV sequences and isolating novel sequences that are identified. The sequences may be used e.g. for preventing or treating hyperproliferative conditions such as cancers and psoriasis, and other autoimmune diseases like rheumatoid arthritis, multiple sclerosis, diabetes, autoimmune thyroiditis, scleroderma or Crohn's disease. Example 5 SEQ ID ö 20; 136pp; English.

CC protein that when present in an AAV virion imparts decreased continuous control to the virion as compared to the corresponding wild-type virion. Also described are: a polynucleotide encoding the mutated protein above; a recombinant AAV virion comprising the mutated protein above; and delivering a recombinant AAV virion to a cell or tissue of a vertebrate cut enterologous nucleic acid molecule to a cell or tissue of a vertebrate cubject, where the protein encoded by the heterologous nucleic acid molecule is expressed at a level that provides a non-primate, mammalian cubic acid molecule is expressed at a level that provides a non-primate, mammalian cubic acid molecule is expressed at a level that provides a non-primate, mammalian cubic acid molecule acid molecule encodes a therapeutic protein inparts decreased control elements capable of directing the in vivo transcription confined to control elements capable of directing the in vivo transcription is useful for treating or preventing a wide variety of disorders such as hemophilia, glycogen storage deficiency type 1A, Pepck deficiency. Capalactosemia, phenylketonuria, Crigaer-Najjar disease, Gout and Lesch-schemic, inflammatory and immune disorders, muscular dystrophies, and capables. This is the amino acid sequence of adeno-associated virus 1 capaid protein VPI. describes a mutated adeno-associated virus (AAV) capsid then present in an AAV virion imparts decreased

The methods and compositions of the present invention are useful for the prevention and/or treatment of rheumatoid arthritis, multiple sclerosis, sarcoidosis, diabetes, sclerosderma, psoriasis, vasculitis, Crohn's disease, hemophilia, HIV, bacterial infection, cancer and ulcerative colitis. The present sequence represents the amino acid sequence of an adeno-associated virus protein.

The specification describes a method for lowering total cholesterol levels in a subject. The method comprises delivering to the subject a recombinant adeno-associated virus (AAV) comprising a gene encoding a human apolipoprotein E (apoE) or apoA under the control of a regulatory control sequence which directs expression of the gene. The recombinant AAV also comprises a capsid protein selected from an AAV serotype (e.g. AAV7 or AAV8) which preferentially expresses high levels of transgene in live. A therapeutically effective amount of apoE or apoA expression is obtained upon delivery of low dose of AAV. The method of the invention is useful for lowering total cholesterol levels in a subject, e.g. for treating atherosclerosis, and for correcting defects in lipoprotein. The present sequence represents a capsid protein of AAV serotype 1 (AAV1), which may be used in recombinant AAV vectors of the invention.

The invention relates to an adeno-associated virus (AAV) clade comprising at least three AAV members, where each member of the AAV clade is phylogenetically related as determined using a Neighbor-joining heuristic by a bootstrap value of at least 75 % per 1000 isolates and a Poisson correction distance measurement of no more than 0.05. The methods and compositions of the present invention are useful for the prevention and/or treatment of rheumatoid arthritis, multiple sclerosis, asproidosis, diabetes, scleroderma, psoriasis, vasculitis, Crohn's disease, hemophilia, HIV, bacterial infection, cancer and ulcerative colitis. The present sequence represents the amino acid sequence of an adeno-associated virus protein.

The methods and compositions of the present invention are useful for the prevention and/or treatment of rheumatoid arthritis, multiple sclerosis.

The methods and compositions of the present invention are useful for the prevention and/or treatment of rheumatoid arthritis, multiple sclerosis, sarcoidosis, diabetes, scleroderma, psoriasis, vasculitis, Crohn's disease, hemophilia, HIV, bacterial infection, cancer and ulcerative colitis. The present sequence represents the amino acid sequence of an adeno-associated virus protein.

The methods and compositions of the present invention are useful for the prevention and/or treatment of rheumatoid arthritis, multiple sclerosis, arcoidosis, diabetes, scleroderma, psoriasis, vasculitis, Crohn's disease, hemophilia, HIV, bacterial infection, cancer and ulcerative colitis. The present sequence represents the amino acid sequence of an adeno-associated virus protein.

The present sequence is capsid protein VPI of one such serotype (AAV6). AAV6 can be used to contruct AAV viral vectors for use in gene therapy for a range of disorders: cystic fibrosis, cancer, AIDS, atherosclerosis, sickle cell anaemia, thalassaemia, blood clotting disorders and diabetes. The AAV viral vectors have increased transduction efficiency of a particular host cell as the AAV virion containing the AAV vector genome can be modified to express a capsid protein of an AAV serotype that transduces the selected host cell
